Firefighter Mick Tisbury to Feature on Australian Story

ABC Health Reporter Tegan Taylor speaks with UFU Victorian Branch member Mick Tisbury about his work on PFAS chemicals and elevated cancer risks associated with their use in firefighting. Mick has an amazing story to tell after having uncovered contamination scandals, presented to the United Nations Stockholm Convention in Geneva and then going on to find a way to reduce PFAS blood levels, which was backed by a peer reviewed study.

Mick's work will have a tremendous worldwide impact on Firefighter health.

Mick's story will be available:
